“ Since the moment I met Aaron years ago I knew I wanted him in my life. Though we fished together a few times we rarely caught many fish but he was so excited about going and so positive I looked forward the next trip none the less. I can still remember the jokes he would tell as my kids grew up and were learning to speak. Making up his own version of what the kids were saying to make us all laugh. We also shared many songs in the last few years, sharing different reggae artists for each other to listen to, I only wish there was more time. His love for life and positive outlook touched my heart and I will sorely miss him, I know he has found peace.
